There are Spiders all over the District.
AND THAT'S A GOOD THING.
University of Richmond Spiders are defining law and policy on Capitol Hill, leading the nation's most influential think tanks here in D.C., and championing industry-changing thought policy across disciplines. Diverse in interest and ambition, but united by one common thread — as Spiders, excellence lives within us.

NATIONALS AGREE TO TERMS WITH PATRICK CORBIN

Note: A version of this story first appeared on the Curly W Live blog on Dec. 7, 2018

The Washington Nationals agreed to terms on a six-year contract with All-Star left-handed pitcher Patrick Corbin on December 7, 2018.

Corbin, 29, joined the Nationals after going 11–7 with a 3.15 ERA and 246 strikeouts in 33 starts for the Arizona Diamondbacks in 2018. He set career marks in nearly every category in his sixth professional season, including ERA, strikeouts, games started, innings pitched (200.0), WHIP (1.05), hits allowed per nine innings (7.29), home runs allowed per nine innings (0.68), strikeouts per nine innings (11.07) and strikeout-to-walk ratio (5.13).

A two-time All-Star (2013, 2018), Corbin finished fifth in the National League Cy Young Award voting in 2018 after ranking in the top five in the National League in home runs per nine innings (2nd, 0.68), strikeouts per nine innings (3rd, 11.07), strikeouts (3rd, 246), strikeout-to-walk ratio (3rd, 5.13), opponent on-base percentage (4th, .270), WHIP (4th, 1.05) and opponent OPS (5th, .607).

"We are excited to welcome Patrick and his wife Jen to the Washington Nationals organization," said Washington Nationals Managing Principal Owner and Vice Chairman Mark D. Lerner. "We've known Patrick to be a great competitor from across the diamond throughout his young career, but in getting to know him through this process, we know he will be a tremendous asset both on the field and off."

In 2018, Corbin became just the fifth left-handed pitcher since 1990 (10th season overall) to record a season with at least 200.0 innings, 200 strikeouts and fewer than 15 home runs allowed.

Corbin led Major League Baseball with a 34.6% swing and miss rate, according to Stats LLC., and according to FanGraphs.com, he ranked behind only Max Scherzer with a 15.6% swinging strike rate. He trailed only Scherzer in the National League with 54 three-pitch strikeouts and 211 strikeouts swinging.

"We've always said that starting pitching is the driver. As the top free agent pitcher on the market this offseason, we targeted Patrick from the onset," Nationals President of Baseball Operations and General Manager Mike Rizzo said. "He was one of the top pitchers in the National League in 2018 and at 29 years old, we believe the best is yet to come. We are thrilled to bring him into our organization."

Corbin limited right-handed batters to a .324 slugging percentage, the lowest mark by a left-handed pitcher in the National League. His .259 opp. on-base percentage and .213 opponent batting average against righties were both good for second-lowest in the National League.

In six seasons with the Arizona Diamondbacks, Corbin went 56–54 with a 3.91 ERA in 172 games (154 starts). He ranks third in Diamondbacks history in starts, strikeouts (897) and innings pitched (945.2). His 56 wins are good for fourth in the club's history.

Corbin was selected by the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim in the second round of the 2009 First-Year Player Draft out of Chipola (FL) Junior College. He was acquired by the Diamondbacks on July 25, 2010.

BE LIKE MIKE

By Jon Cooper & Staff

In the 3,709 days since March 4, 2009, 22 MLB teams have changed General Managers, some of them changing multiple times.

As baseball has rolled by like an army of steamrollers, Mike Rizzo has been the constant for the Washington Nationals.

Now in his 36th season of professional baseball, Rizzo is a baseball man's baseball man. His grandfather, Vito, played semi-pro ball before starting a scouting business. His father, Phillip, spent decades traversing the country evaluating baseball talent, and was inducted into the Professional Baseball Scouts Hall of Fame as a member of its inaugural class in 2008. (He's currently serving as a senior advisor with the Nationals.) That makes Rizzo, himself a former semi-pro player, a third-generation baseball man. He's as genuinely grateful about that fact as he is humbly magnanimous.

"The Lerner family gave me an opportunity to become the head of the franchise and I couldn't thank them more," said Rizzo, who took over GM duties on an interim basis in 2009, but has served as the General Manager and President of Baseball Operations since August 1, 2013. "We had a blueprint of how I wanted our organization to be built. After a couple of lean years at the beginning, we've been as successful as any team in the league and we're proud of that. We're proud of bringing good, competitive baseball to DC for a long time now. It's been a great decade for me here. With the expansion of the neighborhood and everything, I couldn't be prouder of the small part that I've played here."

The Nationals ride a franchise-best streak of seven consecutive winning seasons into 2019 (two more than the previous high, set by the Montreal Expos from 1979-83) and have won four NL East titles in the 10 seasons of the Rizzo Era, three more than the franchise had in the 39 years leading up to his tenure.

And — while Rizzo's record speaks for itself — there's no shortage of people eager to attest to his impact on DC and the baseball community at large. The Boston Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America (BBWAA) named him MLB Executive of the Year in 2012. It's an award those around him say he should win every year because of the culture he's built from the ground up in our nation's capital.

"The biggest thing around here is respect, honesty, loyalty … and it starts with him," said first baseman Ryan Zimmerman, the lone Nationals player who pre-dates Rizzo's arrival in DC.

"The biggest thing I respect about Mike is his honesty. If you have a question, you can go talk to him. You might not like the answer that he gives you, but I respect him more for that.

"Mike uses the new-age baseball stuff, but at the same time, he has that old eye-test scout sort of feel, where if you struggle for a couple of weeks, he sticks with you," ZIM added. "I don't think he knows how much that gives us confidence to go out there every day knowing he has your back."

"Rizz is a guy that stands by his word. He's open, he's honest, good or bad," said pitcher Stephen Strasburg, whom Rizzo selected first overall in the 2009 MLB Draft. "There's a commitment to winning and to having successful ball clubs. When I first signed here, it was a little bit of a different story."

That story — the one of Rizzo rebuilding the Nationals — reads a lot like the story of the expansion Arizona Diamondbacks, whom Rizz helped mold into a championship team just a few years after their inception as a franchise.

After scouting stints with the Chicago White Sox (for whom he evaluated and signed Hall of Famer Frank Thomas) and the Boston Red Sox, Rizzo headed out to the desert to help the D-backs earn their stripes.

From 1998 through 2005, Rizzo built the Minor League system for the D-backs as Director of Scouting, instilling a pitching-first philosophy early in his tenure. The D-backs evolved from a 97-loss expansion team in '98 to a powerhouse that won 100 games the next season. They averaged 92 wins over the next five seasons, and took home a Commissioner's Trophy as World Series champions in 2001.

"Championship-caliber clubs are all built around starting pitching," he said. "That's my philosophy."

So, in July 2006, the Lerners offered Rizzo an opportunity to come aboard as Assistant GM and help the Nats earn their stripes. He would accept and immediately get to work constructing the foundation of a winning franchise. By 2009, he had the keys to the kingdom. By 2010, he'd been officially implanted as General Manager and Executive Vice President of Baseball Operations. And by 2013, he'd assumed his current role of General Manager and President of Baseball Operations.

Throughout his career in professional baseball — from semi-pro ballplayer-turned-scout to longest-tenured GM in the NL East – one thing has remained the same: his ability to treat people with the kind of dignity, honesty and integrity that makes an indelible impression.

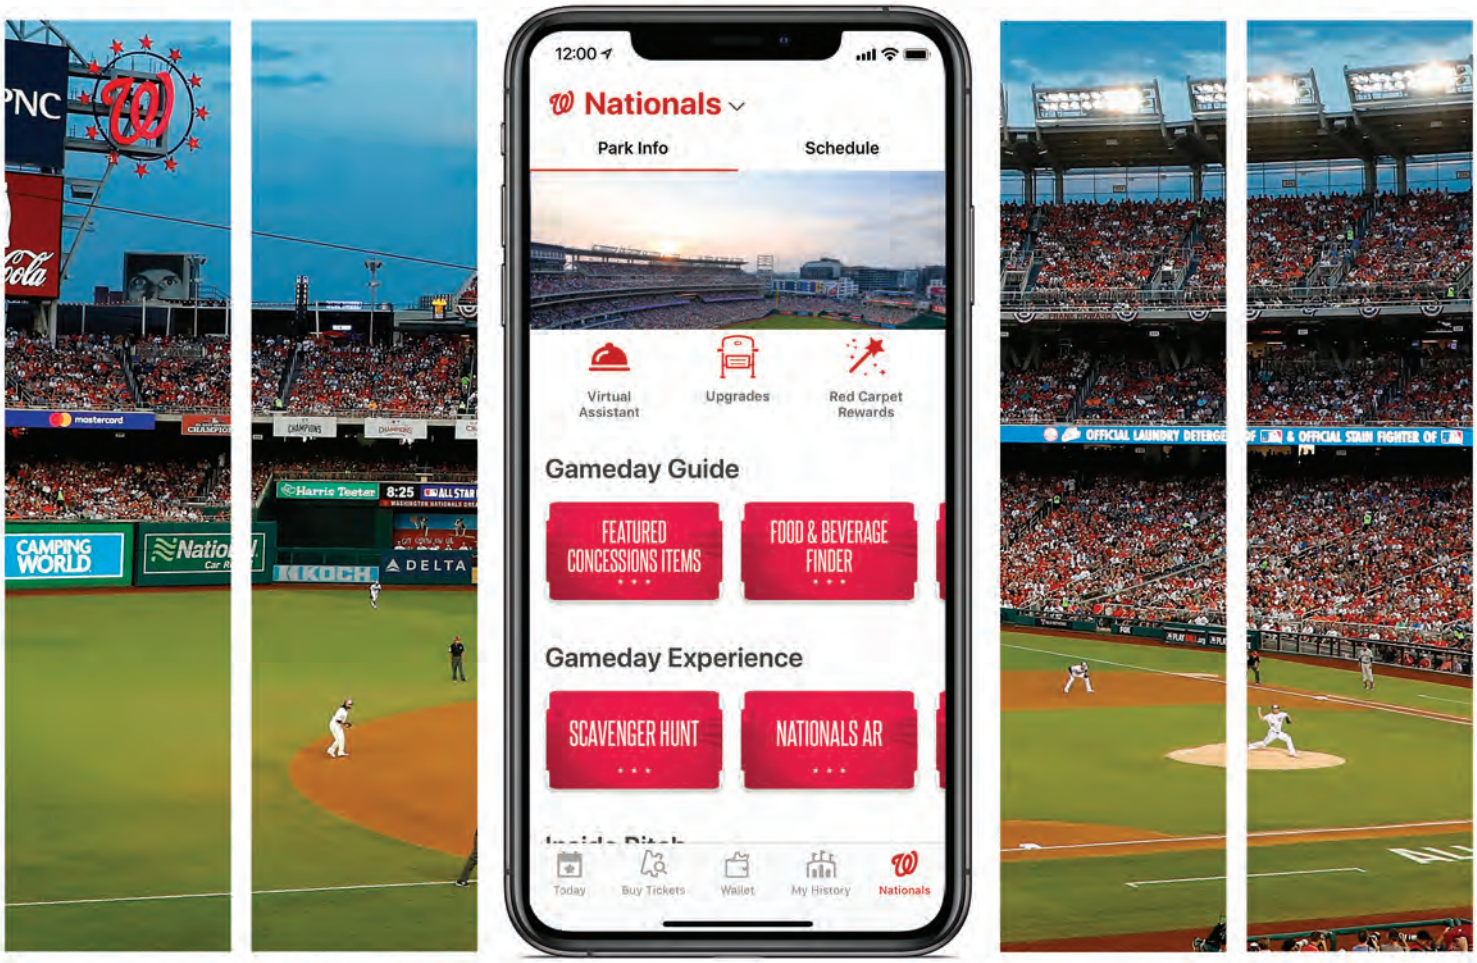

"When you're going through the draft process, there are some teams that like you, some teams that don't," recalled Max Scherzer, who was a 21-year-old right-hander at the University of Missouri when he met Rizzo, then the D-backs Scouting Director. "I was a little dinged up my junior year and when I came back, I was full-tilt and pitching well. As draft day was coming, I knew the Diamondbacks really liked me and that Mike Rizzo really wanted to draft me. For him to have that confidence in me, despite the popular belief, always resonated with me. I've never forgotten that."

That relationship came full circle on January 21, 2015 — nine years, two All-Star appearances, one Cy Young Award, and 1,321 strikeouts later — when Rizzo was again able to bet on Scherzer, signing him to a seven-year deal to play the prime of his career in Washington.

And it's not just Scherzer. Rizzo's eye for talent has resulted in a steady stream of success for the Nats. Whether it be drafting can't-miss college prospects (Strasburg, Bryce Harper, Anthony Rendon), signing premier international talent (Juan Soto, Victor Robles), adding dynamic ballplayers via trade (Trea Turner, Joe Ross, Sean Doolittle), or acquiring veteran players who impact the game on the field and in the clubhouse (Gio Gonzalez, Jayson Werth, Adam Eaton), Rizzo is always working as many angles as possible to keep the Nats on track to compete this season, next season, and five seasons from now.

"Mike's done a great job," said Rendon.

"We've been competing for a division championship each and every year. So kudos to Mike and the trust that the Lerners have bestowed upon him to actually do what he wants and to bring up a great core of players."

"It's special. Since I've been here, every year we've had a competitive team," said Michael A. Taylor, a sixth-round pick in 2009. "Obviously, he's a huge part of that. He's committed to winning and we appreciate that as players."

Heading into 2019, Rizzo added to that core and stayed true to his philosophy when he inked highly coveted free-agent pitcher Patrick Corbin to a six-year deal.

"What I really liked was how honest he was, straightforward with everything," Corbin said. "He just told me what he expected and what he wanted to do with this ball club. I was excited for what he was trying to put together."

He also brought in veteran catchers Yan Gomes and Kurt Suzuki to emphatically address an area of need early in the offseason.

"Just knowing Rizz, I felt like he was going to do a lot to help this team get better and get back to the Postseason and a chance to win the World Series," said Suzuki, who chose to return to Washington after playing there in 2012 and '13. "It was an easy decision. Familiarity with the organization, with Mike Rizzo, the Lerner family, a lot of the coaches and a few of the players. It was just the right situation."

For Rizzo, the right situation means players with character and commitment, something that extends beyond Nationals Park.

"Between the lines is important, but in the clubhouse, in the community, in the area is as important to us," he said. "These guys do their job on the field, but in the community they're hardworking, a lot of them under the radar, behind the scenes. That's just the way they want it.

"When I came here in 2006, this area was starving for baseball. It was taken away from them for about 35 years," Rizzo said of DC. "You see the beautiful ballpark that we've put up in Southeast. You've got a vibrant neighborhood that's one of the most highly sought-after neighborhoods in all of DC. The Nationals Youth Baseball Academy had success by branching out to Little League franchises in places where the grassroots of baseball is now growing. This generation of Washingtonians will grow up as Nationals fans. In the past, because baseball wasn't here for so long, you didn't have that."

Then there's the expansion in the Dominican Republic, which has produced the sensational Soto — who, in 2018, became The Greatest Teenage Hitter in MLB History™ — and Robles, the five-tool prospect who is now an electrifying contributor at the Major League level. Rizzo reinvented the organization's presence in the DR at the beginning of his tenure, and the fruits of that labor have started to pay off.

"Eleven years ago, we went down to the Dominican and blew up the whole operation," he recalls. "In a three-day period we changed the culture of the Washington Nationals in the Dominican Republic. We hired the best and brightest that we could find because international scouting and player development and signing players in foreign countries, Latin America, is one of the most unique scouting endeavors that you could have. I was responsible for it for 12 years; I've been going down there for 20.

"We hired the best International Director in baseball in Johnny DiPuglia, our Vice President and Assistant GM. He has turned the culture upside down there," raved Rizzo.

"We're taking poor kids and are giving them an opportunity to play a game that they love, make some money, and change their lives. We teach them English, we teach them how to live in the United States, we teach them how to write checks and do laundry," he added. "It's a life-changing experience when they sign with the Washington Nationals."

The same could be said for Rizzo, who – after a decade at the helm of one of MLB's perennial contenders – is in a position to be as proud of what he's built as he is hopeful for what he's building.

"We want to win a World Series for the city and the area," he says. "That's first and foremost in our minds, and to do that the right way with good, quality athletes and good, quality people."

Good, quality athletes and good, quality people.

Now that's a baseball legacy to hang your hat on.

ALL-STAR GAME

ANTHONY RENDON

UN-DER-RAT-ED

[CLAP, CLAP, CLAP-CLAP-CLAP]

Anthony Rendon might not get the recognition he deserves, but that doesn't mean he isn't one of MLB's stars in 2019.

By Staff

"Hopefully, the fans will know who I am."

That's what Anthony Rendon had to say at Spring Training in reference to the bobblehead night the Nationals have planned for him for the 2019 season. Not exactly the response you'd expect from a franchise cornerstone who has been the team's most valuable position player since the start of 2016. But that type of disarming humility is exactly what the Nationals front office and legion of fans have come to expect from one of baseball's most unassuming producers.

"People say that Rendon is under the radar and that he's underappreciated, but we love him," lauded General Manager and President of Baseball Operations Mike Rizzo. "We have great appreciation for Anthony. I know for a fact that he's not underestimated by any of the Major League teams we play against. They circle his name and he's one of the guys they focus on each and every game."

And how could they not? One look at the back of his baseball card is all you'd need to recognize that Rendon has been one of the most reliable two-way players in the game since breaking into the bigs as a 23-year-old infielder in 2013. The following season — Rendon's first full campaign with the Nats — he slashed .287/.351/.473 and led the NL in runs, en route to a fifth-place finish in MVP voting (while splitting time between second base and the hot corner, no less).

Opposing pitchers were granted a brief respite when injuries limited Rendon to 80 games played in 2015, but he re-cemented himself as a defensive wizard and a middle-of-the-lineup bat at the start of the 2016 season. Since then, Rendon leads all National League third basemen in Wins Above Replacement as measured by FanGraphs (fWAR) with 18.6. Over that stretch, Rendon also has 75 homers (at least 20 in every full season) and leads all NL position players in doubles.

For all that trouble, though, Rendon has zero All-Star appearances to show for it. No Gold Glove Awards. And nary a name-drop in year-end listicles produced by national media outlets.

Long recognized as one of baseball's most dynamic-yet-overlooked talents, Rendon doesn't let his lack of official accolades get to him. In fact, he might prefer flying under the radar.

"I'm not going to grow more comfortable with the attention and spotlight," he confessed. "I know how to handle it, for sure. It's about being professional. And if I do it enough – like I have the last six or seven years – I'll grow accustomed to it and know how to dodge questions and run around them a bit.

"I like to lead by example. Whether I was a rookie or two years, three years into the league, I wanted to come out, play my game, help the team as much as I can and just be a leader by example. I'm not going to say too much in the dugout. I'm not going to try to say too much in the clubhouse, but if I can play the right way, that's the best way I can show it."

And play the right way he has. Rendon opened the 2019 season on an absolute tear. Through the first 20 games of the season he posted a .365 average and rattled off a career-high 17-game hitting streak (the longest in the Majors as of the end of April). And that's not to mention his six homers, 18 RBI, or the .442 clip at which he's reaching base safely.

Nationals shortstop Trea Turner — an outspoken advocate of Rendon's, whose "funny because it's true" proclamation that the Nats' third baseman is his favorite player has been well-documented throughout their tenure on the left side of the infield in DC — doubled down on his opinion of Rendon in the early goings of the 2019 season. Turner was participating in his obligatory Spring Training marketing interview — to populate content for the scoreboard at Nats Park and Nats social media, among other channels — when Rendon quite literally crashed the party.

"Say something nice," Rendon interrupted. His much-publicized BFF didn't skip a beat.

"I gotta say nice things, but I don't have anything to say. He's okay? He's not that great, but we're stuck together," Turner said with thick sarcasm.

Turner — who once hit a leadoff home run while wearing an "ANTHONY RENDON IS MY FAVORITE PLAYER" T-shirt underneath his uniform — didn't stop there (and didn't let up with the sarcasm).

"Sometimes, when he loses focus, that's what I'm here for. I keep him in check," Turner said. "It makes a long season more enjoyable.

"He's good. He's fun. He's talented, obviously. He's good to be around. He's a good person. It's fun sharing that side of the infield with him. We get to joke around between innings and during the game."

The feeling is mutual, as Rendon often champions his shortstop – though he's long been "worried" that Turner's ego has a bit of a life of its own.

"Trea's getting followers," Rendon lamented with thick sarcasm, referencing Turner's performance on sites like Twitch and Caffeine while playing Fortnite. "He's getting views. I don't even hear from the guy anymore. He probably doesn't know I exist."

When pressed, Rendon couldn't help but be honest about his relationship with Turner.

"It's awesome," Rendon says about their friendship. "He's the man. I think when you have that friendship and you have that comfort with teammates — especially on the left side of the infield — you feed off each other and have an idea of how you're going to play.

"I know if I can't get to a certain ball, he's going to have my back and vice versa. I know if I'm moving in a certain direction, he's going to be paying attention to me. We have a strong relationship where we already know what the other is thinking. It's good to have a teammate like that."

While that bond might be more noticeable between Anthony and Trea given their outspoken bromance, Rendon's professionalism and demeanor permeates throughout the clubhouse.

"He's got a quiet demeanor to him, but he's as competitive as anyone in our clubhouse," Rizzo praised. "He takes losing very, very poorly. He's a winner and has been a winner his whole career. He was a college Player of the Year and has a résumé as long as his arm."

And — on that note — Rendon isn't satisfied with his reputation as a winner simply preceding him. He's looking to expound on it.

"We all know that our goal as an organization is to win every game, and to be successful, we have to put in the work," he opined. "Also, the end goal is to be the last team standing."

What he said.

JUAN SOTO
JUAN-DERKIND

Juan Soto just finished his teenage years and is ready to build on his special rookie season.

By Jon Cooper & Staff

This article was originally published in the 2019 Spring Training edition of Nationals Magazine.

There's the fast track to success, then there's the track Juan Soto is on.

His ascent to stardom was so rapid that it literally outpaced time, as Soto technically hit his sixth career home run five days before his MLB debut. Juan Soto's so good he can time travel. True story.

The homer that broke the Space-time continuum came in a suspended game at Nationals Park that began on May 15 and was later resumed on June 18, nearly a month after Soto joined the club. So, sure, the time traveling thing might be a fluke. Juan Soto, though? His consistent production throughout a stellar rookie campaign proved that he is anything but.

In 116 games last season, the 19-year-old Dominican native slashed .292/.406/.517, lacing 121 hits and scoring 77 runs. He led all National League rookies (min. 400 PA) in on-base percentage (.406), OPS (.923), RBI (70) and walks (79). His 22 home runs ranked second on the same leaderboard.

Soto earned the nickname Childish Bambino when he became the first teenage player in the history of Yankee Stadium – any Yankee Stadium – to hit two homers and draw a walk in the same game. He became The Greatest Teenage Hitter in MLB History™ when he broke the MLB record for OPS in a teenage season, which Hall of Famer Mel Ott had held for 90 (!!!) seasons.

Soto also set MLB teenage records for OBP and walks, and he came close on several other such marks. His 22 homers were two off the Major League record for a teen, set in 1964 by Boston outfielder Tony Conigliaro and tied by Bryce Harper in 2012. His 66 RBI were fourth-most by a teen and the most by a player under the age of 20 since Chicago Cubs 1B/OF Phil Cavarretta drove in the record 82 in 1935. He just missed becoming the third teen to hit .300 in a season, which would have meant joining Ott and five-time All-Star shortstop Edgar Renteria. His .517 slugging percentage was the third-highest ever by a teen, trailing only Conigliaro's .530 and Ott's .524.

Those feats were a direct result of his impressive consistency. Soto was never held hitless in three straight games and only failed to reach base in back-to-back games three times all season.

"If you analyze some of the at-bats that he has had, I don't know how he does it," Nationals' VP of International Operations Johnny DiPuglia told The Washington Post. "He is getting pitched in the big leagues at 19 like he has played in the All-Star Game eight times."

Soto himself even found his debut year a little difficult to fathom.

"It's really crazy," he told The Post back in October. "I just never thought this would happen."

Not even the most optimistic scouts or front office executives could have thought Soto would be this good this quickly. He jumped four levels of professional baseball in a single season, aided by a mere cameo appearance at Double-A and the fact that he skipped Triple-A entirely.

The Greatest Teenage Hitter in MLB History™ started 2018 with the Hagerstown Suns of the South Atlantic League (A). He'd play 16 games there, then suit up for 15 with High-A Potomac and play only eight games for Double-A Harrisburg before receiving the call he'd been hoping for since signing with the Nationals as a 16-year-old. He never stopped hitting regardless of where he was, batting a combined .362 (55-for-152) with 14 homers, 52 RBI, and 29 walks vs. only 28 strikeouts.

"We knew he was special but I didn't think he'd be leaving us quite yet," said Senators' Manager Matthew LeCroy to The Post.

Soto got the call to The Show on May 19 between games of Harrisburg's double-header against Richmond. Two days later he hit his first big league homer in the first at-bat of his first big league start. He'd debuted as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning the night before, but officially arrived when he connected with a 90-mph, belt-high fastball on the outside part of the plate from San Diego lefty Robbie Erlin and deposited it 422 feet away in the back of the visitors' bullpen at Nats Park. First pitch. Opposite field. Left-on-left.

Sound like a pitcher's worst nightmare? It sure does to Nats ace Max Scherzer.

"There is no one way to approach Juan late in counts," said Scherzer, who's won three Cy Young Awards and struck out 300 batters in 2018. "He can hit the ball anywhere."

Manager Dave Martinez echoed that sentiment, praising Soto for his approach at the plate.

"He just adapts every day," Martinez told The Washington Times. "I think he won't change because his approach is simple. Stay in the middle of the field and, with two strikes, just try to put the bat on the ball and put it into play. He's really good at it."

Soto's 19-year-old season may sound familiar to Nationals fans. It was only six years earlier that they saw Harper put on a similar display, hitting .270 with 144 hits, cranking out 22 homers, driving in 59 runs, scoring 98 times and totaling 254 bases in 139 games on his way to winning National League Rookie of the Year.

ALL-STAR GAME

But what Harper did was expected from the No. 1 overall pick of the 2010 MLB Draft. For many Nationals fans, Soto's dominance came as a very welcome surprise.

In spite of a phenomenal, record-breaking rookie campaign, The Greatest Teenage Hitter in MLB History™ finished as the runner-up in 2018 NL Rookie of the Year Award voting. But, Soto wasn't disappointed by his second-place finish behind Atlanta outfielder Ronald Acuña Jr. In fact, the two hit it off as teammates with the MLB All-Stars on their week-long tour of Japan.

"I am happy for him," Soto told The Washington Times during Winterfest, the offseason meet-and-greet with fans at Nationals Park. "We keep being friends. Congratulations [and] that is it. No more [talk] than that."

There was plenty more talk about Soto, though, after he spent that horizon-expanding trip to Japan hitting a robust .350 (7-for-20) with a pair of homers, five RBI, a 1.159 OPS and a double off the roof of the Tokyo Dome.

He's got the incredible rookie season and the trip to Japan under his belt with his first big league Spring Training on tap. Now 20, Soto's primed to man left field for the Nats in one of the game's most exciting outfields.

MLB Pipeline's No. 4 overall prospect Victor Robles – still only 21 years old – is expected to break camp with the club for the first time in his career and will likely be stationed in center. Adam Eaton is a few years removed from being one of baseball's most valuable right fielders in terms of Wins Above Replacement, and he has a .394 on-base percentage during his two years with the Nationals. Five-tool stud Michael A. Taylor has terrorized teams on the bases and developed into one of the game's elite defenders. And former LSU standout Andrew Stevenson drove through six hours of pouring rain to join the club in DC during August of 2018 and promptly hit the first homer of his MLB career.

As for Soto, expect him to exhibit more of the power, patience and persistence he put on display throughout his first season with the Nationals. And, as he so eloquently put to Chelsea Janes of The Washington Post, for him to just, "keep doing Juan Soto things."

THIS IS JUST ONE FIELD WHERE OUR STUDENTS EXCEL

In 2018, both The Catholic University of America men's and women's rugby teams advanced to their respective national championship tournament — the women's team coming within one victory of claiming a national title and the men making it through to the Elite 8.

As one of the nation's leading research universities as well as premier Division III athletic institutions, Catholic University attracts student-athletes from across the country. They value the academic opportunities that come with the experience of competing in intercollegiate sports, and put as much commitment, focus, discipline, teamwork, and perseverance into their work in the classroom, the library, or the lab as they do when in uniform.

The ultimate goal, after all, is more than simply scoring points, winning games, or collecting trophies (although we celebrate those things, too). It's about building character, promoting excellence, and preparing for success long after the final whistle sounds.

Our students are champions in ALL fields.

TELEVISION BROADCASTERS

BOB CARPENTER

Bob Carpenter is in his 14th season with MASN and the Nationals, and his 36th in Major League Baseball. After earning a Radio-TV-Film degree with honors from the University of Missouri-Kansas City in 1975, Carpenter began his broadcasting career in 1976 on radio baseball play-by-play with the Tulsa Oilers. Carpenter came to Washington in 2006 after 10 years on TV and radio with the St. Louis Cardinals and 16 seasons of MLB on ESPN. During the spring of 2017, Carpenter retired from calling college basketball games after 40 years, the last 15 with the University of Oklahoma, and many with ESPN and USA Network. He was inducted into the Oklahoma Broadcasters Association Hall of Fame in March 2017. A St. Louis native, Carpenter's MLB debut came in 1984 with Cardinals baseball on Sportstime Cable Network, and he returned in 1995 on KPLR-TV and KMOX Radio. Carpenter was nominated for four St. Louis/Mid-America Emmys, winning twice (1996 and 1997), and a National Capital/Chesapeake Bay Emmy in 2008 for his Nationals play-by-play. Carpenter was also named co-DC Sportscaster of the Year in 2014 by the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association. Carpenter appeared on TV in the 1980s and 1990s, calling MLB games with the Rangers, Mets and Twins. He announced MLB, college basketball, and college football during 18 seasons of play-by-play with ESPN from 1988-2005, and, as a reporter, was in Denver and Phoenix for two MLB Expansion Drafts. Carpenter has broadcast baseball playoffs, five Triple-A All-Star Games, NCAA/NIT Basketball Tournaments and College Football bowl games. His studio work includes College Gameday and College Football Scoreboard shows. Carpenter announced the 2005 NCAA Basketball Final Four in his hometown of St. Louis for NCAA International TV, one of the seven NCAA tournaments he has called. Before joining ESPN, Carpenter handled a variety of sports for USA Network, including pro soccer, college basketball and football, PGA Golf (including The Masters) and professional tennis (including the U.S. Open). Carpenter announced numerous soccer matches at RFK Stadium, starting as the TV voice of Team America in 1983, and worked several matches in DC during the 1994 World Cup. Bob and his wife of 39 years, Debbie, have two daughters and a son-in-law: Katie, Ryan and Allison.

F.P. SANTANGELO

F.P. Santangelo returns for his ninth season broadcasting Nationals games on MASN, working alongside play-by-play veteran Bob Carpenter. Prior to joining MASN in 2011, Santangelo earned broadcast experience announcing San Francisco Giants games on CSN Bay Area and the Giants Radio Network, as well as hosting radio talk shows on San Francisco's KNBR-680 AM and Sacramento's KHTK-1140 AM. Santangelo played parts of seven seasons in the Major Leagues with the Giants, Montreal Expos, Los Angeles Dodgers, and Oakland A's during his 14-year professional career. In 665 MLB games, he batted .245 with 87 doubles, 14 triples, 21 homers, 162 RBI and 37 stolen bases. He appeared in one Postseason with Oakland in 2001. Primarily an outfielder, Santangelo played six different positions during his career and played under former Nationals Managers Dusty Baker in 1999 (SF) and Davey Johnson in 2000 (LAD). He was selected by the Expos in the 20th round of the 1989 First-Year Player Draft, and finished fourth in the 1996 NL Rookie of the Year voting. Santangelo played collegiately at Sacramento City College and the University of Miami after graduating from Oak Ridge High School in El Dorado Hills, Calif. He is a father of two: F.P. Jr., 23, and Summer Jo, 21.

ALEX CHAPPELL

Alex Chappell joins our Nationals and MASN team from ESPN, where she covered college football for three years. She brings more than 10 years of television experience. In 2017, she covered the Tampa Bay Rays for Fox Sports Sun and, following the season, reported on the Postseason for TBS. Prior to her time in Tampa Bay, she reported on the Red Sox, Celtics, Bruins and Patriots for WHDH-7News in Boston. Prior to that, she started as a reporter for CBS in Birmingham, Ala., covering Auburn University and The University of Alabama, her alma mater. She grew up in Cabin John, Md., and attended Walt Whitman High School in Bethesda. She's proud to return to the DMV area and cover her hometown team. Alex was married in the offseason to Scott Chappell, a patent attorney at Bookoff McAndrews. They live in McLean, Va., with their golden retriever, Harley, and their tabby cat, Rocky.

RADIO BROADCASTERS

CHARLIE SLOWES

Charlie Slowes became an original voice of the Nationals on February 24, 2005, just in time for their inaugural spring training broadcasts. Slowes called the first pitch in club history, as well as many other historic firsts that season. His trademark taglines — "BANG, ZOOM go the fireworks!" and "A #CurlyW is in the books!" — after Nationals victories soon became part of the Beltway baseball lexicon. The 2019 season marks Slowes' 15th with the Nationals, his 22nd consecutive year calling Major League Baseball, and 27th overall. He enters the campaign having called 3,447 Major League regular season and Postseason games, including 2,284 with the Nationals. Several moments in 2005 rank in Slowes' top Nationals highlights, along with Jayson Werth's memorable walk-off home run in Game 4 of the 2012 National League Division series. Calling Max Scherzer's 20-strikeout game, three no-hitters in just over a calendar year — thrown by Jordan Zimmermann (Sept. 28, 2014) and Scherzer (June 20 & Oct. 3, 2015) — and Bryce Harper's three-homer game in 2015 are also among Slowes' career highlights. Baseball's return to the nation's capital in 2005 also marked a return to Washington for Slowes, named the radio voice of the NBA's Washington Bullets in 1986 at just 25 years of age. Slowes called Bullets games through the 1996-97 season, including two years of radio/TV simulcasts. The 11-year run was then a franchise record, eclipsed by Slowes' successor and current Wizards' voice, Dave Johnson. Slowes made the switch to Major League Baseball full-time in 1998 as an original radio voice of the Tampa Bay Rays, calling their first seven seasons. Slowes had previously called games for the New York Mets (1988 & 1991) on WFAN-AM, the Baltimore Orioles (1989-90) on WBAL-AM, and on the network level for NBC-TV and CBS Radio. Slowes also called Triple-A baseball for the Tidewater Tides on radio and TV in 1986, 1988, 1991 and 1992. Slowes is among the ever-growing list (starting with legendary Ford Frick Award winner and Hall of Famer Vin Scully) to have entered sports broadcasting after graduating from Fordham University in his native New York City, and having honed his skills on Fordham's 50,000-watt blowtorch, WFUV 90.7 FM. Slowes' first career break came not long after graduation, early in 1984 at KMOX Radio in St. Louis, where for three years he was exposed to the likes of Ford Frick Award winners, the late Jack Buck, and broadcasting great Bob Costas. In three years in St. Louis, Slowes was involved in broadcasts of Cardinals baseball, Cardinals football, Blues hockey and play-by-play of St. Louis University basketball. In three-plus decades as a play-by-play broadcaster, Slowes has also called boxing for ESPN, MISL soccer for the New York Arrows (1983) and college basketball at the University of South Florida. During the Nationals' 2012 NL East Division Championship chase, Slowes joined MLB Network's afternoon show, "The Rundown," and will again report for the TV network in 2019. On February 22, 2018, Slowes called play-by-play for his third Washington pro sports team when he filled in for John Walton on Washington Capitals radio while Walton was calling hockey at the Winter Olympics. Charlie and his wife, Tina, have two sons, James (25) and Alex (21), and the family splits time between homes in Alexandria, Va., during the season and Palm Harbor, Fla., during the offseason.

DAVE JAGELER

Dave Jageler enters his 14th season with the Nationals, teaming with Charlie Slowes since 2006 to form the longest-running radio play-by-play duo in the District. Jageler has been at the mic for the Nationals' four NL East championships, plus three no-hitters and Max Scherzer's MLB record-tying 20-strikeout performance. Jageler joined the Nationals after spending the 2005 campaign as the radio and TV voice of the Pawtucket Red Sox of the Triple-A International League. Prior to joining Pawtucket, he worked in Boston co-hosting an afternoon talk show and serving in various capacities with the Boston Celtics radio network, including fill-in play-by-play. Jageler spent six years in Charlotte as the voice of UNC-Charlotte basketball and co-hosting a morning drive talk show. While in Charlotte, he built his baseball resume with the Triple-A Charlotte Knights in the 1995, 1996 and 2001 seasons doing play-by-play. Jageler's voice was also heard in DC, as he served as a host on the Virginia Tech Sports Network during the 1993-94 basketball season. He has also served as the studio host for Westwood One's NHL Game of the Week, the Florida State and Texas Longhorns football networks, and has done fill-in play-by-play for both the Seminoles and Longhorns. The Windsor, Conn., native is a graduate of Syracuse University's S.I. Newhouse School of Public Communications, where he began his play-by-play career broadcasting Syracuse football and basketball games on WAER, and baseball for the Triple-A Syracuse Chiefs on Time Warner Cable and the Empire Sports Network. Jageler and his wife, Jennifer, have two children: Jared (18) and Sarah (14).

WASHINGTON NATIONALS DREAM FOUNDATION

The Washington Nationals strive to become a civic partner to every Washingtonian interested in making a positive difference in our region, and to be a leading philanthropic organization in professional sports.

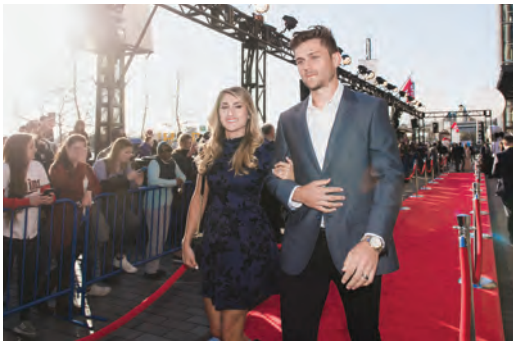

To date, the Washington Nationals Dream Foundation and its programmatic arm, the Youth Baseball Academy, have harnessed the power of baseball to deliver tangible opportunities for youth throughout the greater DC Metro area. This includes year-round activities and programming at the Academy's nine-acre education and recreation campus; establishment of the Diabetes Care Complex at Children's National; Delta Dream Grants to local organizations providing services to children and teens; the fully accessible Miracle Field in Montgomery County; and multiple renovated Legacy Fields.

NATIONALS HOMECOMING GALA

The primary fundraiser for the Dream Foundation, the 2019 Homecoming Gala, raised nearly $1.1M for the foundation's initiatives across the Washington, DC, region. Held for the first time at The Anthem at District Wharf, the reimagined Gala showcased the foundation's year-round community contributions. The event was emceed by Lindsay Czarniak and featured red carpet arrivals, a cocktail reception, dinner program, silent and live auctions, and an 'Extra Innings Party' featuring a musical performance by Dirty Dozen Brass Band.

The event also featured a Battle of the Cocktails, with four restaurants at the Wharf and Navy Yard creating player-inspired cocktails with each benefitting the player's charity of choice. The Ryan Zimmerman-inspired ziMS Cup at The Salt Line won the competition, resulting in a $5,000 donation from the Dream Foundation to the ziMS Foundation for the treatment and cure of Multiple Sclerosis. All other charities received a $1,000 donation, including Capital Area Food Bank on behalf of Patrick Corbin, The Dragonfly Foundation on behalf of Adam Eaton, and Humane Rescue Alliance on behalf of Max Scherzer.

COMING TOGETHER FOR A COMMON CAUSE

As the foundation continues to evolve its approach to philanthropy, more programs will be designed to catalyze the energy of Nationals fans and the generosity of Nationals players, corporate champions, and community partners — all to promote a better Washington.

In January, the foundation acted in support of neighbors affected by the longest government shutdown in our nation's history. Through extensive research and careful consideration, the Dream Foundation identified the Capital Area Food Bank as a community organization best poised to meet an acute need in the DMV. The foundation was able to deliver a $100,000 donation to the food bank, closing its funding shortfall as a result of the shutdown – but the efforts didn't stop there.

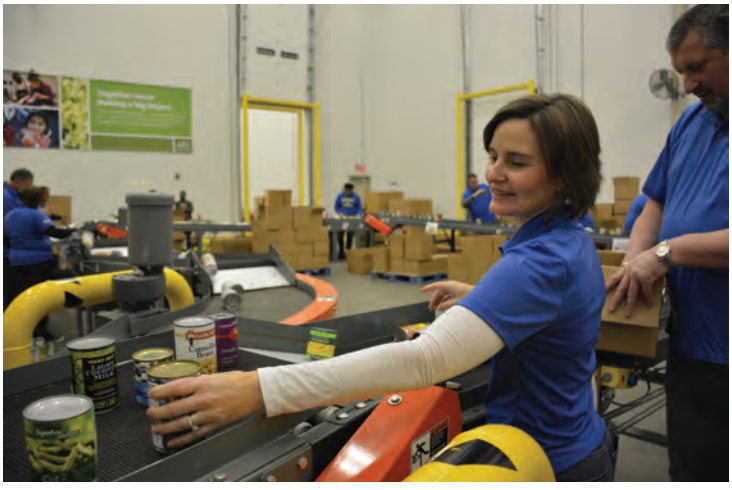

With the support of the Nationals Front Office, and through the advocacy of our players and their families, the foundation activated the extended Nationals family of supporters to come together for neighbors in need. In just one day, an additional $26,000 was raised for the food bank.

Together, we can continue to make a positive difference throughout our region by sharing the sport we love and using our platform for good.

RYAN ZIMMERMAN

Ryan Zimmerman's commitment to the community is best illustrated through his work with the ziMS Foundation, which he founded in 2006, his first full season in the Major Leagues. The ziMS Foundation aims to raise money and awareness for programs benefitting those afflicted with Multiple Sclerosis. Multiple Sclerosis is a disease close to Ryan's heart. In 1995, his mother, Cheryl, was diagnosed with MS, a chronic and unpredictable disease that affects the central nervous system.

Serving as the foundation's president, Zimmerman is actively involved in decision-making and donates his time, money and image to promoting the Foundation. Though it remains staffed entirely by volunteers, including friends and family, the foundation has raised $3.5 million for organizations dedicated to the fight against MS.

Now in its 10th year, the ziMS Foundation's A Night at the Park benefit event, scheduled for May 13, has set a standard for the intersection of philanthropy, sports, and music.

CHANGING THE WORLD IS A CONTACT SPORT.

People with intellectual disabilities are excluded and discriminated against every day. It's time we team up and take to the field to change this. Together, as one, intolerance and injustice don't stand a chance.

WALTER PERRY JOHNSON
"THE BIG TRAIN"
Walter Johnson might have been the fastest pitcher in baseball history. With his sweeping sidearm delivery, the "Big Train" led the league in strikeouts 12 times during a 21 year career with the Washington Nationals from 1907 to 1927.
Johnson won 417 games, including 10 straight seasons of 20 or more, and his 110 shutouts remains the major league record to this day. He led Washington to their World Championship of 1924.
In 1936, Walter Johnson was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame.

MAKE BREAKFAST HAPPEN SO KIDS CAN BE HUNGRY FOR MORE
I was one of our nation's hungry kids growing up. Today, 1 in 5 children in America struggle with hunger. But when they get breakfast, their days are bigger and brighter. Learning, attention, memory and mood improve. Together, we have the power to get breakfast to kids in your neighborhood — let's make it happen. Go to hungeris.org and lend your time or your voice.

Our National Parks

The National Mall welcomes millions every year, but what they see is hardly welcoming.

Eric Chvang

More than two miles of open space, monuments, and memorials welcome and inspire 25 million visitors to our nation's capital each year. But like many national parks, the National Mall in Washington, D.C., desperately needs our help. Although Congress has proposed some additional investment, "America's front yard" still needs $350 million in federal funding for maintenance, repairs, and preservation. Now is the time to act if we're going to preserve our national parks in time for their upcoming centennial, and ensure they can be enjoyed by our children and our grandchildren.

You can help with a simple letter. Visit NPCA.org/mall. Or call 1-800-NAT PARK.

Communities In Schools

In schools to encourage healing.

As if dealing with his mom's death wasn't hard enough, Sean had to adjust to a new home and new school. It was a lot to handle, so he struggled emotionally and academically. Lee from Communities In Schools helped Sean develop coping skills by finding positive outlets for his feelings. As his attitude improved, his grades followed—going from D's to B's. Now, he's focused on football and a promising future. There are millions of at-risk kids like Sean who need a caring adult to help them stay in school and succeed in life.

GUEST CONDUCT POLICY

The Washington Nationals and Major League Baseball are committed to creating a safe, comfortable and enjoyable sports and entertainment experience. Please review the Guest Conduct Policy below and enjoy your visit to Nationals Park.

General Guidelines
The following guidelines have been established for guest behavior:

- Be a team player – restrict movement in the aisles and other seating areas to breaks in the action.
- Standing or sitting in the portals, tunnels and stairs, as well as sitting or climbing on the railings, is prohibited.
- Disabled seating platforms are for guests with tickets for those areas only.
- Tops, bottoms and footwear are required for admission.
- A guest may only wear a face mask while seated in his or her ticketed seat. The Nationals may publicly announce additional restrictions in connection with specific games or other events.

Within all ticketed areas, our staff will proactively support a family-friendly environment, free from the following behaviors:

- Disruptive behavior, including foul or abusive language, obscene gestures, or use of Derogatory Language (see below)
- Interference with other guests' ability to experience the event
- Any disruption to the progress of the event by guests' actions, including interference with a ball in play
- Irresponsible or underage consumption of alcoholic beverages or the facilitation of underage drinking
- Intoxication, diminished capacity or other signs of impairment related to substance abuse
- Fighting, horseplay, excessive taunting or threatening remarks or gestures
- Throwing objects
- Attempts to enter the field or to cause objects to enter the field
- Sitting in a location other than the guest's ticketed seat or failure to produce a ticket on request
- Accessing areas without a proper ticket, pass and/or credential or misusing tickets, passes and/or credentials
- Displays of affection not appropriate to a public, family setting in the District of Columbia
- Obscene or indecent clothing or clothing that denotes or connotes obscene or indecent messages

- Any other action deemed dangerous or inappropriate

The ballpark staff has been instructed to work in unison with guests and to intervene when necessary to help ensure that the above expectations are met. Guests are encouraged to report any inappropriate behavior to the nearest guest experience representative, security personnel or Guest Services staff member.

Behavior in violation of the Guest Conduct Policy may result in the guest being ejected without refund, barred from the Nationals Baseball Stadium Complex, arrested by police, being subject to possible prosecution and/or having his/her NATS PLUS Membership and/or Season Plan(s) revoked. All NATS PLUS Members and Season Plan Holders are responsible for their conduct as well as the conduct of their guests and/or persons using their tickets. NATS PLUS Memberships and Season Plans, as well as Individual Game Tickets, are revocable licenses. The Nationals reserve the right to revoke ticket privileges for any reason and at any time during the season. Smoking & Tobacco Nationals Park is a completely non-smoking and tobacco-free facility per District of Columbia law. There is no exception for electronic cigarettes or any other type of smoking device, or for smokeless tobacco or any other type of marijuana or tobacco product.

Use of Derogatory Language
The Nationals will not tolerate the use of "Derogatory Language" at Nationals Park. Derogatory Language means offensive language concerning another person's race, color, ethnicity, sex, gender, religion, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, or national origin. Guests are encouraged to report any use of Derogatory Language, whether it is directed at players, umpires, other baseball personnel, staff members, or fans, to the nearest guest experience representative, security personnel or Guest Services staff member.

Banners & Signs
The Nationals welcome signs and banners consistent with the following policies and encourage fans to show their team pride. To ensure that signs, banners and fan activities do not distract from the enjoyment of sports games or other forms of entertainment, the Nationals require all guests to adhere to the following policy within the ticketed areas:

1. Composition
Banners and signs must be handheld and must: (a) utilize only cloth, paper or other light flexible materials, and may not be comprised of or supported by wood, metal or other hard materials that could be dangerous in a crowded public setting, (b) not be affixed to or draped over any part of the baseball park structure, whether facing inside or outside of the baseball park, and (c) be no larger than 2 feet by 4 feet.

2. Display
Banners and signs may be displayed only (a) within the ballpark's seating area, (b) in a stationary manner, (c) in a manner that does not obstruct any person's view of the playing field or interfere with player or umpire sightlines, (d) so as not to obscure baseball park signage, equipment or advertising, (e) so as not to impede the operation of the ballpark, and (f) so as not to interfere with the game or jeopardize the safety of guests. Only one sign or banner may be displayed by each guest.

3. Subject Matter
a. The Nationals Baseball Stadium Complex* is a baseball park and entertainment venue in which guests gather for purposes of enjoyment of sports games or other forms of entertainment and is not a forum or place for use by the public at large for assembly and speech, for use by certain speakers or for the discussion of certain subjects. 4. Removal
The Nationals reserve the right to remove any display of a banner or sign that does not conform to these limitations, or require a guest to immediately stop displaying the non-conforming banner or sign.

Believe In Tomorrow™
National Children's Foundation

92% reaches the kids. 100% reaches your heart.

When 92% of each dollar goes directly to programs, you are making some child's life more bearable.

When you take their minds off pain and refocus it on adventure, they suddenly realize there's more to life than illness.

When you help build, donate or equip retreat and hospital housing for these children, you speed their recovery and restore some sense of normalcy to shattered families.

When kids believe in tomorrow they are that much closer to having one.

Make believing possible.
